CAIRNCROSS & HEMPELMANN WELCOMES BACK ANNA REVELLE STOCK

Seattle, Washington – Cairncross & Hempelmann is thrilled to announce the return of Anna Revelle Stock to our Real Estate team. Anna’s practice is concentrated on commercial real estate transactions and development projects. She represents and advises buyers and sellers in all aspects of acquisition and sale of real property; landlords and tenants in preparing, negotiating and enforcing the terms of commercial leases; lenders and borrowers in the financing of real estate projects and loan workouts; and developers and homeowners in preparing governing documents for condominiums and housing developments.

Anna returns to her position at CH& after gaining additional experience working in the University of Washington Real Estate Office as the Property Rights Manager. Matt Hanna, managing partner, notes, “Because of her deep knowledge and experience, Anna is able to jump in right away on some of our largest and most complex projects, and we’re thrilled to have her join us at this particularly busy time in the real estate world.”

For her undergraduate degree, she attended Vassar College, and graduated with Honors. She then received her Juris Doctorate from the University of Washington School of Law, and presently resides in the Seattle area with her husband and son Mason.

The Real Estate team at CH& is designed to address the needs of landlords and tenants in the retail, office and industrial/fulfillment center leasing sectors. Each member of the CH& team brings unique experience highlighting their respective practices. More importantly, beyond refined the legal skills, each brings significant or especially relevant hands-on experience, not only in the process of space selection, negotiation, and leasing, but also with subsequent litigation and exit strategies.
